

Transcription

Whenever a fresh corpse comes in, this girl gets really excited. You think she's obsessed with her job, but she's actually stealing brains from corpses. She heats up veggie spaghetti and adds freshly made brains and sprinkles them with chili sauce. She puts on the lid and shakes it up, and a delicious lunch of brains is prepared. She takes a bite and it's a real treat, and to make it even better, she turns on a zombie movie. She had been invited to a party by a colleague. She was approached by a man. He was trying to sell her some kind of drug. She politely declined, but she didn't expect him to slap her on the ass. She poured a glass of water over his head. At that moment, a riot broke out on the yacht. A huge fire started to burn, and the man had turned into a monster. In the confusion, she was grabbed and fell into the water. When she woke up again, she found herself in a body bag with three deep scratches on her arms and a large number of corpses all around her. The policeman saw her come back from the dead and ran away in fear. Ever since then, Eve turned into a zombie. She developed an insatiable appetite for human brains. In order to avoid killing innocents, she quit her job at the hospital and became a coroner. She thought that she could solve her food problem without knowing it, but it wasn't long after that, she was caught eating brains by a coworker. Eve was instantly nervous, but she didn't realize that her colleague wasn't scared and was very excited. He even dragged her to have a thorough checkup, because in his opinion, to be a zombie and still be sane is a miracle in the history of medicine. In order to help her eat healthier, a coworker recommended some brain-making recipes for her.

