

Title: The Last Photo

[INTRO - 0:00-0:30]

(Spooky ambient music, camera pans over an empty street at sunset)

Narrator (VO):

"Twilight... when the sun hides behind the clouds, some stories only begin when darkness falls. This is the story of a photo you should never look at."

---

[SCENE 1 - 0:30-1:30]

(Cut to Mara scrolling her phone, looking at old photos.)

Narrator (VO):

"Mara was cleaning her old photo gallery when she found a picture she didn't remember taking. In the photo, there was a house at the end of the street... and a shadow in the window."

(Zoom in on the photo, eerie wind sound)

Narrator (VO):

"She thought it was just a joke... but something about that shadow felt wrong. It looked like it was staring... at her."

---

[SCENE 2 - 1:30-3:00]

(Mara walking home, shaky camera, suspenseful music)

Narrator (VO):

"The next day, while walking home, she noticed the house... the same one in the photo. Dust-covered, abandoned. But one window... held a shadow inside."

(Dramatic pause, heartbeat sound increasing)

Narrator (VO):

"She stepped closer, and someone--or something--tapped her shoulder. There was no one around. The shadow in the window... seemed to move toward her."

---

[SCENE 3 - 3:00-4:30]

(Close-up of Mara's phone, recording video)

Narrator (VO):

"She started recording, trying to prove to herself it was nothing. But on her phone screen... the face of a stranger appeared, smiling, and disappeared before she could stop the recording."

(Sound effect: whispering, faint laughter)

Narrator (VO):

"The face... looked just like hers. Older. Colder. Staring right through her."

---

[ENDING - 4:30-5:00]

(Camera pans to Mara's reflection in the window, shadowy figure behind her)

Narrator (VO):

"Twilight... the time when memories heavier than light come back. And sometimes... photos aren't just photos."

(Screen goes black, echoing whisper: "Don't look at me...")

---

[OUTRO - optional CTA]

(Soft echoing music fades)

Narrator (VO):

"Want more stories like this? Follow Takipsilim Tales for tales that begin in the dark..."